Suggested Activities:

- Have students pick cards with the names of Peter’s character traits written on them from a selection of prepared cards. Students will describe personality traits in themselves that relate to traits that are attributed to Peter on their cards. Materials Needed: Index cards labeled with types of character traits. Students may be asked to choose one positive trait they see in another classmate for the purpose of further discussion.

- Have students role play Jesus and Peter as Jesus interviews Peter for the job. Focus on trying to persuade Peter that he can use his characteristics for positive change.
- Read a scripture passage related to Peter. Re-write it as a modern newspaper story.
- Divide the students into small groups and assign each group (for the more extensive texts more than one group could be assigned) to look up the following scripture passages referring to St. Peter. After the citations have all been read, the teacher can then ask the students to explain what each citation says or reveals about St. Peter. The teacher may then proceed to elaborate upon the student responses and what these passages reveal to us about St. Peter and the ministry of the Pope by highlighting the following key themes: primacy of Peter and the triple ministry of the Pope (as bishop of Rome) - governing, teaching, sanctifying:
